Colli di Luni is a DOC title for wines from the coastal hills around Massa and La Spezia in northwest Italy. It is only one of 15 of the 425+ Italian appellations that crosses over from one administrative region to the next. Everything about the Colli di Luni represents the transition between Liguria and Tuscany – the geography, the grape varietals, and the wine styles. The name refers to Luna ('the moon'), so given to this area by the Romans. There are connections with the moon on many levels here.

Brilliant ruby red colour. Juicy cherry with tobacco, white pepper and liquorice. Warm and soft, but well balanced by the significant structure and pleasing tannin.

Wine Spectator 88 POINTS

Only limited cases available.
