Nervi is the oldest producer in Gattinara, with over 100 years in operation. Located in North Piedmont, the region is famed for the production of one of Italy's finest and most historic wines. It was founded by Luigi Nervi in 1906, and covers 24 hectares of Nebbiolo vines in the Casacce, Garavoglie, Molsino and Valferana vineyards. The Molsino vineyard is one of Piedmont's finest south-facing amphitheatres. The Valferana vineyard can be traced back to 1242 in Gattinara's municipal deeds.

At the foothills of Monterosa, Europe's second highest mountain protects from northerly winds, ensures sufficient precipitation, and provides a steady thermic breeze through the vines. With plenty of volcanic gravel and high clay content in the soil, Nervi's vineyards are unique in an Italian oenological context.

A rare varietal, grown in the northwestern Piedmont region, the Erbaluce grape takes its name from the goddess Albaluce, whose realm was Caluso, in Canavese.

Like fresh spring mountain water – the wine is crisp, high in acidity, with white flowers and peaches and a lovely touch of minerality.

Pairs well with pasta, rice, delicate fish dishes, shellfish and vegetables.
